These Are the Airlines With the Best (and Worst) Food

5. JetBlue

No need to worry about flight attendants being stingy with the snacks — items like PopCorners, Doritos, and Terra Blue chips are free and unlimited on JetBlue flights, plus passengers have the freedom to grab them at their leisure from centrally located "marketplaces." However, outside of mid-flight munchies, options are limited. Cross-country fliers can purchase EatUp snack boxes or EatUp Café menu items like kale salads, cheese plates, and Korean noodle bowls. Just distract your growling belly with the stellar in-flight entertainment.
